BODEGAS SOLALTO WINERY

SolAlto's vineyards are located in the Tulum Valley in San Juan Province. Long recognized as one of the country's most important premium vineyard sites, Tulum Valley is noted for state-of-the-art irrigation practices, sustainable farming methods and hand harvesting.

Bodega SolAlto, or Wine cellar (of the) High Sun, rests on the foot of the Andes at an elevation of 3,937 feet. Although their SolAlto wine is new to the U.S. market, world renowned wine writer Anthony Dias Blue knows the winery very well:

"...Down to earth prices but elevated quality, thanks to high altitude vineyards and French consultant Michael Rolland."

Unique among the region's wineries and constructed in the shape of a cross, each of the four wings of the bodega houses a small winery with two sections. The first, at ground level, houses stainless steel fermentation tanks. The second, 26 feet below ground level, is used for maturing the wine and oak aging. The four wineries meet at the central chamber where they share a state of the art bottling facility, and the entire design was created to minimize handling, pumping and oxidation in order to protect the fruit flavors and aromas of their red and white table wines.
